Michael R. Irwin, M.D.

Director, Cousins Center for Psychoneuroimmunology, UCLA Semel Institute for Neuroscience and Human Behavior
Norman Cousins Distinguished Professor, Department of Psychiatry and Biobehavioral Sciences, David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA
Los Angeles, CA

Michael Irwin, M.D. is Norman Cousins Chair for Psychoneuroimmunology at the UCLA David Geffen School of Medicine, and is Director of the Cousins Center for Psychoneuroimmunology at the UCLA Semel Institute for Neuroscience and Human Behavior. He is also Professor of Psychology at UCLA, Director of the UCLA Training Program in Psychoneuroimmunology and Mental Health, Past-Chair of the UCLA Collaborative Centers for Integrative Medicine, and member of the Advisory Board of the UCLA Center on Aging as well as the UCLA Jonsson Comprehensive Cancer Center. He is currently Associate Editor of Brain Behavior and Immunity, Secretary-Treasurer of the American Psychosomatic Society, Past-President of the Psychoneuroimmunology Research Society, Past-President of the Academy of Behavioral Medicine Research, and Past Member of the Advisory Council for NCCAM. Working in the area of psychoneuroimmunology for nearly two decades, his research is broadly based on the interactions between behavior and immunity, with a recent emphasis on the sleep and inflammation. His present research program also includes investigations examining the capacity of behavioral interventions to improve insomnia in older adults and in cancer survivors, as mediated by inflammatory mechanisms.

Dr. Irwin received his B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1976 magna cum laude and his M.D. from the University of California, San Diego in 1981. He completed psychiatry residency at the UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute.
