Biographical Sketch:

Steven E. Hyman, MD is Provost of Harvard University and Professor of Neurobiology at Harvard Medical School. As Provost he has had a major focus on the creation intellectual endeavors that span multiple disciplines and that cross the boundaries of Harvard's schools. He has also worked to revitalize Harvard's museums, libraries, and cultural institutions. From 1996 to 2001, he served as Director of the US National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), the component of the US National Institutes of Health charged with generating the knowledge needed to understand and treat mental illness. At NIMH he emphasized investment in emerging genetic technologies and neuroscience. Prior to his government service he was the first faculty Director of Harvard University's interdisciplinary Mind, Brain, and Behavior Initiative. In the laboratory he studied the control of neural gene expression by neurotransmitters, especially dopamine, with the goal of understanding mechanisms that regulate emotion and motivation. Dr. Hyman is Editor of the Annual Review of Neuroscience and Founding President of the Neuroethics Society. He is an elected member of the Institute of Medicine of the US National Academies and a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He received his BA from Yale in 1974 summa cum laude, and a BA and MA from the University of Cambridge in 1976, which he attended as a Mellon fellow studying the history and philosophy of science. He earned his MD from Harvard Medical School in 1980 cum laude.
